Sreehari Raman

sreehari.raman@kau.in

Born and brought up in Munroe Island, a backwater tourist village in south India. My education and passion for nature shaped me as a young biologist. Over the years, I focused on highly specialized small mammal groups such as bats and small-carnivores seen in the Western Ghats biodiversity hotspot. My research on taxonomy, biogeography, bioacoustics, niche modelling, and behavioral ecology using advanced techniques will help to draw meaningful results for the long-term conservation of those elusive species and their habitats.
